LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the members of the Senior Class of 1941 of Brookneal High School, being of sound mind and judgment, do hereby make and declare this to be our last will and testament. This valuable document, duly executed and signed, is as follows:

To our beloved teachers, Miss Brooks, Mr. Tomko, Mr. Cardwell, Miss Wooding, and Miss Vaughan, we bequeath our sincere affection and heartiest appreciation for the wise and helpful guidance they have so cheerfully given us throughout our high school career. To them, we give, also, a boodly share of the honors we hope to win in future life.

To our successors, the Juniors, we bequeath the opportunity to make a record that we'll be proud of. To various individuals we make these important and generous gifts, trusting that they may be duly appreciated.

Since there is a member of the Junior Class who has so much in common with one of our seniors, we have decided to will to Annie Ramsey Orena Joy's love for the Navy.

To Norris Holt we bequeath Stafford Roark's ability to fill the shoes of Romeo.

We bequeath to Fulton White Richard Foster's love for the front seats in school.

To Lovey Cyrus, Geraldine Roach leaves her temper. Lovey, you've got some "controlling" to do.

James Bailey has consented to will his sunny smile to Royal Elder Jr. in order that Royal might make better time with the girls.

As much as Nora Lee Holland hates to give up her favorite sport, she has, with much persuasion, agreed to bequeath her love for dancing to Josephine Bailey.

Lois Mutter wills her love for the boys to Jean White. Good luck Jean!

To Rosa Mae Tuck, we bequeath Evelyn Elder's pen-pals of the Army.

Magdalene Joy wills her keen interest in the Army to Christine Childress.

Christine Fleshman wills her domineering personality, as Mrs. Morris in the Senior Play, to Elizabeth Johnson.

To Maggie Starkey Iris Tweedy wills her remarkable talent for spelling.

Barbara Owen wills to her baby sister, Betty Jane, her made-over clothes. Just be patient, Betty Jane, your time will come.

To "Pat" Williams, Katherine Marstin bequeaths her extreme quietness. Make good use of it, Pat.

Douglas Marshall wills his place in the Hall of Fame (best-looking Senior boy) to Buddy Yates.

Since I fully hope and expect to graduate, I very enthusiastically will my place in the senior class to Calvin Elder.

With our last parting breath, we do hereby constitute and appoint the principal of afore mentioned school sole executor of this, our last will and testament.

In witness whereof; we, representatives of the class of 1941, attach our signatures.

THE PROPHECY

I found myself sitting under an elm tree on a beautiful grassy lawn---studying history. My mind would not concentrate on history wandered to the thoughts of graduation and its preliminaries.

My thoughts grew dim, and I seemed to be in a trance. No longer was the day bright and sunny, but dark and dreary. I scarcely had sunk into a light and troubled sleep when I awoke with a startled suddenness---a mumbling in my ears. Arising, I wandered out into a garden, gloomy and desolate. The scene before my terror---stricken gaze was such a one that I can scarcely relate it. Before a low burning fire a witch was tending. Black and grim she stood by, preparing something for her supper. Sensing approach she turned and smiled in mocking mood.

"Why com'st thou here, my child? Knowest thou, that seeing me here, you must take the consequences!" Before my eyes I could see writing, I could not move. I seemed to be living in the future rather than the present. Though fearing the results, to curiosity I yielded. The witch began to explain it all to me. These things I learned on that fateful day:

Among my lucky friends who had risen to dazzling heights of fame was Iris Tweedy. In the West there was a magnificent amphitheatre and the e Iris was singing her way into the hearts of thousands of people. On the next Sunday afternoon she was to be Guest Star on the Coca-Cola program, her theme song being "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny".

I heard the whirring sound of a dynamo and saw Richard Foster, our skillful electrician. He was following closely in the footsteps of Thomas Edison, experimenting with electricity and its applications.

Stafford Roark, who has won fame in the athletic field, is playing third base for the Detroit Tigers.

To my surprise, there were the head lines of a newspaper which read, "Miss Roach stars in the Screen Guild's version of the popular movie 'The Persistence of Memory'". Miss Roach was none other than Geraldine Roach.

Next from the vapor flew Nora Lee Holland, who is now dancing in one of Fred Astaire's musicals.

Katherine Marstin is living happily in the far West---her professional degree of M.R.S. having been attained.

Well of all things! Yes, there stands Douglas Marshall in the shoes of Franklin D. Roosevelt, which our president had long since laid aside. His face was grave and weary-looking, and in his thought the destiny of the mightiest of nations.

Magdaline Joy is a most efficient officer as Secretary of Labor in President Marshall's Cabinet.

Evelyn Elder is taking a correspondence course in bookkeeping, because she likes to write letters so well.

I see Kenneth Holt, having completed his training at San Antonio, Texas, as an ace aviator, soaring above the clouds.

Barbara Owen is a dress designer in New York City and is running her own "Modiste Shoppe".

Orena Joy has accomplished her long-lasting desire to be a nurse, and is Superintendent of one of the largest hospitals in New York City.

Whom should I see next but a flirtatious old bachelor, James Bailey? He had always been popular among the fair sex, but to his sorrow had never found his "dream girl".

In the Sunny South was Doris Smith, to whom the following description may be applied---"Eyes that are blue and smiles that bewitch! She is an efficient teacher of Home Economics."

To Maggie Starkey Iris Tweedy wills her remarkable talent for spelling.

Barbara Owen wills to her baby sister, Betty Jane, her made-over clothes. Just be patient, Betty Jane, your time will come.

To "Pat" Williams, Katherine Marstin bequeaths her extreme quietness. Make good use of it, Pat.

Douglas Marshall wills his place in the Hall of Fame (best-looking Senior boy) to Buddy Yates.

Since I fully hope and expect to graduate, I very enthusiastically will my place in the senior class to Calvin Elder.

With our last parting breath, we do hereby constitute and appoint the principal of afore mentioned school sole executor of this, our last will and testament.

In witness whereof; we, representatives of the class of 1941, attach our signatures.

Lois Lutter after attending college in California, is now living in West Virginia and is an acrobatic instructor in a large school there.

Strangely enough I saw myself appear on the horizon, but my future was dimmed by my sudden awakening---only to find myself, as before, lazily reclining under an elm tree with my history book on the ground beside me.

CLASS HISTORY

Let us turn back the pages of time and reminisce, for a while, over the happenings of the past eleven years. Let's picture our present Seniors as tiny little pilgrims setting out on a long and tiresome journey.

On one bright sunny morning in 1928 James Bailey left his home and started on this pilgrimage under the helpful guidance of Miss Mary Herndon. He traveled with success throughout the first lap of his pilgrimage and entering the second town of his long and toilsome, yet adventurous journey, he was joined by two others, Richard Foster and Stafford Roark.

Finding much fun along the way these three small comrades, accompanied and entertained by Miss Herndon, continued traveling and soon reached another village. How happy they were at finding three new playmates whose names were: Nora Lee Holland, Lois Lutter, and Kenneth Holt. During this lap of the journey our little comrades were thoroughly and carefully instructed by Mrs. Pearl Foster.

A fourth town's peace was disturbed early one morning when these six children came through whistling, laughing, and singing. It was here that they met with another pilgrim, Mary Henderson, and also an excellent leader, Miss Irene Cardwell, who very painstakingly instructed them and cheerfully tied up their stumped toes.

These boys and girls now growing rapidly in body, mind, and spirit, swiftly traveled and anxiously approached the fifth village of their journey. Here they were met by two pilgrims, namely, Iris Tweedy, and Miss Beverly Wilkerson, their new instructor.

By the time we had reached the sixth town of our journey, we felt that we should do something of interest to ourselves and to the public. After adding to our group two others, Evelyn Elder and Miss Alpha Arthur, our new teacher, we had a meeting to decide what this event of so much interest would be. We decided and gave a minstrel which was remembered by us all through our journey.

In 1936 we were joined by Geraldine Roach, Christine Fleshman, Doris Smith, Magdalene Joy, Orena Joy, Edna Nabors, and Miss Virginia Wiley, our instructor. In the spring of this year we had lots of fun working up and presenting an operetta, "Over the Garden Wall".

In 1937 we entered the eighth town of our exciting journey. Here we were joined by Douglas Marshall. The leaders which joined us in this town were: Mr. McDermott, Miss Helen Falls, and Miss Dorothy Brooks.

In the fall of 1938 our band of pilgrims entered the ninth town of our journey. Here we were joined by another pilgrim, Barbara Owen. We were also joined by two instructors, Miss Virginia Wine and Mr. Lyle Garret.

Entering the tenth town of our journey we welcomed three newcomers: Kathryn Marstin, Merle Carwile and Lowell Elder. We also welcomed four new teachers: Mr. J. R. Cardwell, Jr., Miss Edna Mae Wooding, Miss Louise Dejarnette and Mr. C. E. Tomko. Our pilgrims now felt that that they were grown and wished to do some entertaining. We decided to entertain a group of older boys and girls with a picnic at Timberlake. An evening full of fun and amusement was enjoyed by all.

Finding much fun in the tenth town of our journey we continued on and reached the last and most interesting town of our journey. It was in this town that we met and welcomed Miss Byrd Vaughn to our group. We had a great disappointment during our stay in this last town. We lost four of our comrades: Edna Nabors, Lowell Elder, Merle Carwile, and Mary Henderson.

This last year of our pilgrimage has proved to be probably the most eventful year of our lives.

Two events of particular interest were the Junior-Senior Banquet and the Senior Play, "Baby Steps Out".

The banquet was a lovely entertainment which we shall always remember as the most outstanding social event of our journey. Our play was lots of fun too in spite of its up and downs - we're glad to say there were more "ups" than "downs".

In this last town we have shared our last class gatherings. For now we have reached the end of our pilgrimage-though only to begin another journey-one with greater trials and with much more significance. We no longer shall travel together, but each pilgrim alone, facing and solving his many problems throughout the journey of life.

STUDENT COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

OBJECTIVES FOR THE YEAR:

- To acquire additional material for Music Classes-
- To help beautify the buildings and grounds-
- To promote health and safety among the student body-
- To provide playground equipment for all pupils-
- To interest more students in athletics by awarding letters for outstanding activities-
- To assist librarian in caring for library-
- To help make the S. C. A. all that the name implies.

ACHIEVEMENTS:

A radio-victrola was purchased, thirty-six elementary music books, fifteen double-faced records, and five record albums were also acquired.

The ground in front of the new auditorium and the space between the old and new buildings have been sown in grass. The S. C. A. gave ten dollars towards shrubs for the school ground.

A Safety Patrol was organized. This organization helped to promote quieter halls and more orderly lines. Besides, it has made students more aware of their responsibilities toward other students.

All students have been provided with adequate playground equipments.

More than twenty students have been awarded letters or stars for achievements in the field of athletics. Two of these were grade pupils.

A student group has cared for the library since October.

There is evidence that students are realizing what the term S. C. A. really means. Groups have been responsible for putting on their own programs at the local S. C. A. Meetings. Many have taken part in County and District Meetings. These programs have been carried out in a very creditable manner. There are many other evidences of student cooperation and development which cannot be measured objectively.
